

Our Fashions

What do models wear when they're not models

Models pretty much avoided anything flashy when they weren't on the runways.

A model at the Academy of Art University walks the runway before the fashionable people file in for the show.

When they're walking the runways of Mercedes Benz Fashion Week in New York, they wear the most fashionable clothes of the coming season. But what do models wear in their day to day life? You can get a glimpse into their tastes if you can get into the tents before the public arrives. Before they put on their make-up, have their hair done, and slip on the designer's collection, models rehearse their walk on the runways. And for this run-through, the models just wear their street clothes. Here is what some of the models wore.

At the Andy and Debb show.

Sometimes, the model's own clothes look as if they came off the runway.

It was cold in New York for Mercedes Benz Fashion Week and models dressed for comfort as they bounced from tent to tent.

Prior to the Georges Chakra show.